

What a day!

I'm completely overwhelmed by the acts of kindness in memory of Asher & others we've lost this year in our CHARGE community.

I have to share part of an email from Calla's home room teacher after she shared about CHARGE & Asher today. So thankful that she is in a school who daily shows her love & support and provides an opportunity like today for her to share.

"Words cannot really express how proud I am of your daughter. She just finished sharing her information about Asher. She stopped once momentarily when overcome with tears, collected herself in the hall, and then continued on. The class applauded her when she finished. As a teacher, it was one of those heartwarming moments when you know the entire class is pulling together. I really appreciate Calla sharing today."
