

Saturday, August 3, 2019

Breakout Session D23 • 4:00-5:00 pm • Chantilly Ballroom West

Win:Win. When Parent and Nurse become Co-Advocates

Lucy Marcheschi, Cincinnati Children's Medical Center
Ingrid Lobaugh

Presenter Information

With a BSN from the University of Cincinnati College of Nursing and Health, a CPN and an RNII, Lucy Marcheschi is the Nurse Coordinator for the CHARGE Center at Cincinnati Children's Hospital. As the CHARGE Center's Nurse Coordinator, Lucy strives to achieve an optimal outcome for each child by coordinating individualized care in a multidisciplinary and comprehensive evaluation by the CHARGE Center. Through her various roles as an RN at Cincinnati Children's, Lucy's past experience lends itself to the development of an expertise in care management and advocacy for individuals with CHARGE. As a recognized advocate for children with CHARGE syndrome, Lucy strives to assist families achieve their optimal outcome through coordinating and managing their time at Cincinnati Children's.

Presentation Abstract

This presentation provides a framework of how to best organize, manage and communicate the needs of your medically complex child with your care providers, enabling the creation of a healthcare TEAM (Together Everyone Achieves More).

Learning Objectives

- Define roles and potential roadblocks in the management of a medically complex child from both a parent and a provider perspective.
- Provide proven tips and suggestions for the management and organization of medical records and pertinent information for goal oriented planning / communicating with your healthcare team/providers.
- Offer perspective from a healthcare provider on how to best create a team approach within your healthcare system.